

DICTAGRAMS A. S. P.

It is so easy to overdo the doing of a good thing to do!

The fellow who is killed by kindness is just as dead as the one who dies a natural death.

If life were merely "just one blamed thing after another" it wouldn't be so worse. It's when trouble comes double that the dictagrammer gets fussy.

Speaking of a mussy, one-roomed place to live, if you have been reading the story of A Woman Who Wouldn't Remarry, you may have noticed this: "For a week or so, Bab and I ate and slept and bathed in the ocean."

Also you have noticed her reference to a "sacred sacrament". It reminds me of the man who "stood dumb, silent and speechless, and he never said a word".

Speaking of the oleaginous Arbuckle animal, it seems probable that before he gets out of his present peck o' trouble the lawyers will have fried considerable of the fat out of him. Let him sizzle.

The call issued by the Presbyterian Sunday School for clothing for the "Near East" relief was responded to very liberally by the people of this vicinity. As a result 570 pounds of clothing and shoes has been shipped to Topeka where it will be reshipped in car load lots for the east. The railroad company does not haul such contributions by local freight free of charge and it was necessary to bill the goods as first class freight which called for $1.33 and war tax per hundred.

While he was throwing on a load of coal at the depot Wednesday just after noon, the team which John Saleen was driving became frightened at something and started to run away. When they crossed the railroad track the force of the contact of the wheels and the rails, broke the reach. The front wheels pulled loose from the wagon bed and the team started up Franklin street. They hit the second electric light pole from the corner and stopped. All the harness but the collar was torn from one horse and the other was thrown down. Not a great amount of damage was done and no one was hurt.

Two cars are now on track. Of course the price is high on all fruit but people must have it regardless of price. They would rather have fruit at a low price but it don't seem to come that way any more.
